

SOMMERS GUILTY OF TAKING BRIBES REMAINS LEGAL MLA BONNER RULES

Charges Prove Misdemeanors —Not Felonies

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Robert Sommers, former lands and forests minister convicted on bribery and conspiracy charges, still legally holds his Rossland-Trail seat in the B.C. Legislature.

Attorney General Robert Bonner said yesterday that obscure points of law indicate the charges concerned are technically misdemeanors and not felonies or infamous crimes which would have required that he automatically forfeit his seat.

NOT INFAMOUS

"It does appear that charges concerned are neither felonies or infamous crimes within the meaning of the Constitution Act of this province in as much as these offences appear to have been in the category known technically as misdemeanors," he said. "My advisers reached this conclusion after studying the Constitution Act in conjunction with the Interpretation Act."

While Sommers is still considered to legally hold his seat it appeared obvious yesterday that the government expects his resignation will be forthcoming, which would be the easiest way out of the knotty legal problem facing the government.

There is no recall procedure in British Columbia and apparently it would be possible for Sommers to hold the Rossland-Trail seat even while serving a jail sentence.

MAY ASK COURT

But if no resignation is forthcoming the government could ask the appeal court for a decision as Mr. Bonner indicated might be done.

However, if Sommers doesn't attend at least one day during the whole sitting of the next legislature he would automatically lose his seat under section 54 of the provincial Constitution Act unless he has permission from the Speaker to be absent.

But that would mean Rossland-Trail would not be represented in the session and high government officials have indicated they wish representation for that riding.

Press Hails John D.

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Express calls Prime Minister Diefenbaker a man of world stature speaking for a nation emerging to its full grandeur.

Commenting on his address in London Tuesday, The Express said he made every one of 8,000 British citizens his friend.

"This moving occasion gives a lead which should be followed," the newspaper suggests. Statesmen of the empire should be as familiar to Britons as at home.

The Express carries seven Diefenbaker photographs across the top of its front page under a banner headline reading: "7 keys to greatness."

In Paris Mr. Diefenbaker and Premier de Gaulle met Wednesday amid indications that Canada supports the French leader's goal of stronger and more effective consultation within NATO.

Man Bites Doc

TORONTO (UPI)—Television repairmen fired back at Health Minister McKinnon Phillips yesterday because he said he would rather be in their business and receive higher pay for less work than be a doctor.

Phillips made the statement after disclosing he paid $8.40 on Sunday for TV repairs which took 12 minutes while a friend paid only $4 to a doctor for a half-hour call.

TV technician Alex Martin commented yesterday "we have to guarantee our work, a doctor doesn't."

Another repairman, Morris Henderson commented "I would take his (Phillips) job any day. If a patient dies, there is no call back."

Miners' Fund Tops $2,500

Greater Victoria funds for families in need in Springhill rose yesterday to more than $2,500.

The fund at city hall climbed to $1,471, and the fund at Esquimalt municipal hall to $300. The main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia reported $660 received, and the Nova Scotia Club, $108.

Balloonists Plan Drift Over Ocean

LONDON (Reuters)—Three men and a woman will set off in a few weeks to try to cross the Atlantic in a free-flying balloon under the patronage of Prince Philip.

They are testing their balloon at a government research station at Cardington, Bedfordshire.

The party will sail westward from the Canary Islands, trusting to the winds to blow them 3,000 miles across the ocean to the West Indies. They expect the trip will take about two weeks.

During the day they will navigate by the position of the sun. At night they will chart their position by the stars.

Trial Costs Steep

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some sidelights of the Sommers bribery-conspiracy case.

Legal bills for court appearances alone are estimated at up to $125,000. With expenses and out-of-court work the total bill could reach $250,000.

Exhibits numbered 1,000, and had to be moved about in a big cart by court clerk Jacob Abrahams.

Ten lawyers were involved, and a dozen accountants worked on the documents.

Fourteen shorthand reporters took down more than 2,000,000 words in the 79 days—equivalent to 20 novels.

It was the longest trial in B.C. criminal history and probably in Canada.

The jury spent five days and six nights in confinement.

Case was adjourned six times because of illness of jurors or principals.

MR. JUSTICE J. O. WILSON — HON. R. W. BONNER
... Tremendous job by jury ... grant seems justified

Bonner Agrees

Bribery Jury Rates Bonus

Attorney-General Robert Bonner agreed yesterday with Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson that jurors in the 79-day Sommers trial should be given a "substantial grant."

The judge, in an unusual pronouncement, said the jury had done such a tremendous job in the complex trial that he was going to recommend to the government that they be given a substantial grant, even if it took special legislation.

Mr. Bonner said last night "it will require a grant by way of special warrant. It seems like a most proper suggestion under the circumstances, particularly considering the length of time the jurors have served."

SHAKE YOUR HANDS

Inviting the jurors into his chambers — "so I can shake your hands" — Mr. Justice Wilson said that no matter what they got it could never repay them for what they had gone through.

The judge termed the jury payment of $6 a day almost "disgracefully inadequate" and said the jurors could never be repaid for what they had been called on to do for that meagre sum.

It was so small that it could mean the bankruptcy of a man in small business or working for wages who was called on to judge a lengthy case.

It was then he made his announcement of his intention to seek a government grant for the jurors and said he was sure that if they were ever called for jury duty again and didn't want to serve, the presiding judge would probably excuse them if they told him they had been on the Sommers trial panel.

The jurors had been under the guard of sheriff's officers since last Thursday when the

'Constructive' Plans

White House Beckoning Democrats

WASHINGTON — Democratic leaders pledged yesterday to use their sweeping congressional election victory in a "constructive manner," in hopes of winning the White House in 1960.

But they conceded their overwhelming majorities in House and Senate posed problems. Party leaders warned against any tendency to "divide and contest" among themselves.

Labor unions acclaimed election returns as ensuring a Congress that can wreck all existing state right-to-work laws at one swoop and enact new social legislation.

They gained confidence from defeat of right-to-work referendum in five of the six states in which the issue was on the ballot.

Politically important farm belt states contributed heavily to Democratic successes, which put Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in perhaps the shakiest position he has ever occupied.

President Eisenhower said yesterday the electorate obviously voted for spending advocates.

Eisenhower called any trend toward bigger federal spending a dangerous one, and pledged that his administration will fight hard against it.

Democratic governors will rule 34 of the 48 state capitals, provided a delayed count of some 10,000 mail ballots does not erase a scant Democratic margin in Nebraska.

It will be the Democrats' greatest monopoly of governorships since 1938.

Democratic Senator Warren Magnuson predicted yesterday that the Democratic victory would expedite statehood for Hawaii.

Jurymen Sigh with Relief As Marathon Trial Ends

VANCOUVER (CP)—Foreman Eric Miller of the Sommers bribery-conspiracy jury said Wednesday night, "We are glad it's over."

He expressed the feelings of the nine men and three women who had considered the case 79 days, a record in Canadian criminal trial history. The last week was spent in seclusion as they considered their verdicts.

Mr. Miller worked on and studied his notes until 4 a.m. Wednesday. The jury deliberated until noon before they had lunch and went back to the court room for the last time with their verdicts.

"It was a very complicated case," said Mr. Miller. "A very difficult case for laymen. None of us would want to go through that again."

"I'm tired . . . most of all, I just want to get home to my wife."

James W. Inglis, a stock and bond salesman, said, "It has VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 37 verdicts—23 guilty, 15 not guilty, and 19 no agreement — were dished out in assize court Wednesday in a tense climax to Canada's longest criminal trial.

The courtroom was packed as the jury foreman announced the jury's findings on the 37 bribery charges against 47-year-old former lands and forests minister Robert E. Sommers.

(See other stories on page 6)

Others said to have paid him off for ministerial favor.

FIVE CHARGES

Sommers was found guilty on five charges of accepting bribes, involving some $7,100 he admitted receiving from timber executive H. Wilson Gray.

Sommers said they were legitimate loans.

On two counts involving some $1,300 in travel expenses and a $500 payment, the jury disagreed.

GRAY CONVICTED

It also convicted Gray, 46-year-old father of six children, on eight bribery counts but disagreed on two others.

Thus the jury followed the pattern it set last Saturday when, after more than 50 hours' deliberation, it convicted both Sommers and Gray of conspiracy to collect and split bribes from firms willing to pay for forest management licenses while Sommers was in office.

HEARING TODAY

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson set 2 p.m. today for the hearing of argument as to the sentences which can be passed on those convicted. The matter is subject to legal interpretation as between the new and old Criminal Code because the indictment was switched from one to the other in the middle of the case.

FIRMS GUILTY

After that he will pass sentence on those convicted—Sommers, Wilson Gray and the latter's firms, Pacific Coast Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, both convicted of conspiracy and on eight and two bribery counts respectively. The jury couldn't agree in one other bribery charge against each of the two firms.

LIKELY PENALTIES

Legal experts said Sommers and Gray could get from one to five years on each count—depending on the legal interpretation. The firms would be the last week, savage winds have raked this little fishing town, and rain has fallen in buckets. Ten minutes after I write this, the sky may be clouded over and rain may fall again.

With G. E. Mortimore

MASSETT, Queen Charlotte Islands—Bright sunshine slants through the hotel window. A Jersey bull lumbers down the main street, stirring up the deep puddles. The bull casts a large misshapen shadow, and the puddles mirror a blue sky, for the first time in a week.

This is a moody climate. However, it is not often really cold. Through the window I can see a large holly tree with a rich crop of berries. There is only a narrow temperate belt of Canada where holly will grow.

In Victoria, the owners of holly trees can count on making some pocket money. Here, however, people simply help themselves. Mrs. Kurt Lindner of the hotel says she wouldn't mind so much if they asked permission, but they don't.

We flew over here in a B.C. Airlines Beaver from Prince Rupert in a lull between storms.

Then the clouds descended and 60-mile-an-hour winds blew drenching rain in almost horizontal sheets.

Even B.C. Airlines pilot Jack Malischewski, who knows the islands like his back yard and has flown in some wicked weather, didn't dare fly in.

Among the people stranded here was John W. McAndrew of Victoria, formerly a naval lieutenant-commander, now a civilian inspector for the national defence department. He and some colleagues have been on a visit of inspection to the naval station near here.

When I met Mr. McAndrew, he had just borrowed a radio from the hotel proprietor to take to his room so that he could listen to his son, John, Junior, broadcasting for the CBC from the Springhill mine disaster.

The younger McAndrew is doing well in the broadcasting world; has his own television show. There is no television here. People seem to be dragging along somehow without it. Their radios pick up Victoria, Seattle, Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Ketchikan. They even pick up Nanaimo, which we can't receive in Victoria.

The people devote themselves to such old-fashioned pursuits as radio-listening; reading and—although it may seem incredible—actually talking to one another.

Perhaps you remember that I said at the beginning of this piece that clear weather didn't last long in the Queen Charlotte Islands?

Well, in the time that has elapsed since I began writing, my prediction has come true. The sky clouded over—not just a little cloud, but solid, tent-like. Then it opened out again, and showed about half blue, half cloud.

Now it has clouded over again completely. The weather is a poor subject for conversation here, because it won't hold still. Now rain is falling. But I had better quit talking about it, before it makes a liar out of me.

Bonner Backs Bonus Idea

Judge called for the first verdict on a conspiracy after a four-day hearing.

The jurors deliberated more than 50 hours to reach their decision on the conspiracy count, believed a record in Canada.

Mr. Justice Wilson said it would be improper for him to comment on the jury's verdict, then added:

"I can say that what you have done has shown that justice still functions in this country and that a Canadian jury can be trusted with the most complex case."

PROFOUND GRATITUDE

He expressed his "profound gratitude" to the jurors and said the fact they were able to search through the great mass of evidence and come to their decision was a credit to their industry and intelligence.

Question of raising jury pay was brought up at the last session of the legislature and has been under government advisement with no decision yet reached.

The time has been reached for a "complete review" of the amount paid to jurors in B.C. Victoria Bar Association president E. E. Pearlman said.

Mr. Pearlman said that while everyone agreed that jury duty was supposed to be a duty of the citizen nevertheless in these times appointment to a panel could become an "undue hardship."

COMPLETE REVIEW

"I think the time has come for a complete review of the stipend paid for all jury duty," he said.

Former B.C. chief justice Gordon Sloan, now forestry adviser to the provincial government, said he would have to give some thought to the question before commenting.

"Special cases probably require special treatment," he said.

A resolution from Saanich council calling for an increase in pay for jurors was presented at the last meeting of the Union of B.C. municipalities but was dropped after members argued it was not in their province to recommend such a thing.

Jury Again Disagrees on Many Counts subject to fines, with no maximum set in the case of conspiracy.

Appeals are likely in all cases.

OTHER FINDINGS

The jury made these other bribery findings: John Gray, brother of Wilson, not guilty two others; Charles D. Schultz, not guilty on four counts, disagreement on five others; C. D. Schultz & Company Ltd., not guilty on four counts, disagreement on five others.

DISAGREEMENT

In the case of the multi-million dollar B.C. Forest Products Limited, giant West Coast subsidiary of the E. P. Taylor interests of Toronto, which is accused of conspiracy, Saturday, the jury disagreed on one count of bribery but found the company guilty in five other cases.

SEVEN CHARGES

The Crown had charged that more than $16,000 was involved in the illegal transactions, with the seven counts of bribery against Sommers as a receiver involving $8,907, including ruses for his Victoria home.

But there was an overlapping of amounts involved as between the eight accused, many being accused together as being involved in passage of the same amount.

RETRIAL DUE

Mr. Justice Wilson said that in the case of those accused on which the jury had disagreed he would fix a retrial at the next sitting of the court.

But he added that the presiding judge "and I can assure you I will have nothing to do with it" would decide the actual date. He believed that these accused should be retried soon.

COURT JAMMED

The courtroom was jammed with persons standing at the door listening to the verdicts.

H. W. Gray was charged with 10 counts of bribery involving $11,907; the Pacific and Schultz firms and Charles D. Schultz with nine counts each, involving a total of more than $37,000; B.C. Forest with six counts involving $11,050; John Gray with four involving $7,250 and the Evergreen firm with three involving $3,500.

The Crown backed its multi-count indictment with documents taken by former Pacific Coast bookkeeper Charles W. Eversfield when he left the firm in March, 1955.

Eversfield spent 11 days on the witness stand as chief Crown witness but the battery of a half-dozen defence lawyers were unable to shake the story that Sommers was paid off while in office.

CASE OPENED

It was Eversfield who first opened the case by going to Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy for advice about whether he could take his documents to Los Angeles. He was told he could, that there would be no legal complications.

Sturdy later communicated with him in Los Angeles and put him in touch with Gordon Gibson, former Liberal MLA and wealthy B.C. timber man who has been a severe critic of Social Credit policy on timber licences.

BONNER TOLD

It was after this meeting that Sturdy and Eversfield told Attorney-General Bonner of the allegations in Victoria in December, 1955.

Mr. Bonner later ordered a police investigation but this report has never been made public. The first indictment was laid in November, 1957, and the accused were committed

Roddy's Well Again

OTTAWA (CP)—An electronic intercommunications system linked bedridden Roddy Mundy with his schoolroom a year ago.

But this term, the plucky 14-year-old has traded his bedside microphone-speaker for a seat beside his classmates.

Roddy, a polio victim when he was five, has spent his school days from a wheelchair or walking with canes.

A series of operations last year meant that he would have to lie flat on his back. So to keep up with his Grade 8 studies at suburban Rockcliffe Park public school his father, D. R. Mundy, an official of the defence production department, had a two-way communications system set up between Roddy's bedroom and his classroom.

Roddy listened to lessons, prepared his homework and wrote exams from his bed. This fall, with Grade 8 behind him, he moved out of his bedroom and on to Grade 9 studies at Ashbury College, a nearby boys' school.

"Roddy has never felt left out of things," Mrs. Mundy says. He still uses his wheelchair. He walks with two canes and a brace on one leg. But he is up and about and that is an accomplishment.

Play Park Plan Wins Support

Glanford, the only built-up area in Saanich without any sort of play park, may get one soon.

The municipal parks and services committee Monday night recommended School District 61 be asked to allow Saanich use of the Glanford elementary school ground, for recreation purposes. Part of the area would be fenced off for protection of smaller children.

On two occasions, a delegation from the Glanford area had appeared before the committee to request action in providing adequate play park areas.

Fraser Dams a Must

Essential for Power, Flood Control, Says Williston

The Fraser River must be dammed for flood control as well as power, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said.

"People lose sight of the fact we must dam the Fraser for flood control," he said. He pointed out that there is now no flood control on the Fraser except that the dykes have been raised. But the forests, he said, had been denuded by logging which has prevented more runoff.

"It mightn't come for 20 or 30 years, but under a certain set of circumstances, on the lower reaches of the Fraser you will get floods like those of 1918," he warned.

Mr. Williston said the next 18 months will be the most important ever faced by the people of British Columbia as far as power is concerned. He said reports are due shortly on the Columbia River system, the Wenner-Gren power development in the Rocky Mountain Trench and the Fraser River.

He said the proposed Wenner-Gren development had dealt a new hand to the B.C. government in negotiating for downstream benefits on the Columbia. "It has changed the tenor of negotiations. They came all the way to my office from New York to see if these people (Wenner-Gren) were bluffing," he said.

Revitalizing Victoria

THE city engineering department's proposals for the progressive re-organization of downtown streets, presented to the council this week, is much more than a parking plan. While the detailed recommendations are designed to take care of immediate requirements in the way of off-street parking facilities, the report with its accompanying detailed maps reaches far beyond that. To quote the city engineer, Mr. Garnett, "It represents an effective plan to take care of the inevitable traffic growth which will follow continued economic development."

This is the most far-sighted scheme yet presented to the City. Its fundamental purpose is to revitalize the downtown area; to re-create it as a delightful shopping centre, with adequate and easily accessible parking spaces. To accomplish this some rearrangement of existing streets is envisaged; but if Victoria is ever to overcome its parking difficulties that obviously is inevitable. Victoria, like many other older cities on this continent, labors today under an acute handicap caused by lack of planning in the past. The new plan presents an attractive pattern for the elimination of current disadvantages and at the same time for the prevention of additional ones as the city grows.

The idea of creating pedestrian malls out of streets now too narrow for vehicular traffic—one or two to begin with, more as development proceeds—will appeal to most people, especially those with an eye to the character to which Victoria aspires. This appears to be the best use to which these originally ill-planned and now outmoded streets could be put, so long as there is parking space elsewhere—and provision of that is the core of a plan which appears to have overlooked no important aspect of orderly development.

Most schemes to expand off-street parking hitherto have stumbled over the obstacle of finance. The city engineer's plan offers a practicable solution, though one which may encounter a certain amount of opposition from motorists. It entails doubling the present parking fee, which has remained unchanged here during a decade in which costs of most other services have more than doubled. Detailed estimates have been produced to support the engineer's belief that from this additional revenue the entire system could be made self-sustaining as to both capital outlay and operation, and without diversion of present meter revenue upon which the City relies for other purposes. If that is so, motorists would be simply recompensed for the higher charge, which even then would remain low in comparison with charges made in most other cities.

In principle the over-all scheme is highly appetizing. The details make up too big a meal to be digested by the council, or the public, at one sitting. Victoria, however, has been kept hungry for a workable parking plan far too long already, and it is earnestly to be hoped that priority will now be given to what has become the City's most acute need. Courage would be necessary to implement Mr. Garnett's excellent scheme; but in this matter nothing will ever be accomplished by timid approach.

A Blow to the President

THE Democrats have swept the boards in the U.S. elections this week. Already having lost control of both chambers, Senate and House of Representatives, the Republicans are now reduced to legislative impotence. As a factor in the remaining two years of President Eisenhower's term they are of negligible importance. Actually they are back to the secondary status which had been theirs for long until the Eisenhower prestige lifted them out of the ruck in 1952.

The result will be a severe blow to Mr. Eisenhower, not alone because the voters have rejected his claim of Republican administrative success but because it emphasizes the caretaker nature of his last two years in the White House. Debarred by legislation from seeking a third term, his influence perforce would be less in any case, but now he is faced with a predominantly Democratic Congress. He cannot hope for its co-operation to any worthwhile degree, especially since foreign affairs—currently the cardinal aspect of his administration—have become a focus of adverse American opinion. Inferentially the result is an indictment of the Dulles policies.

As with all off-season election years, this week's balloting casts its shadows forward to the presidential elections two years hence. Republican hopes to place a party successor to Mr. Eisenhower in the White House will have been dimmed. The result reveals afresh that Mr. Eisenhower was chosen for himself and not as a Republican, and now that the president's personal prestige is on the wane—as it has been markedly of late—that party's prospects in 1960 must be considered to be greatly weakened. It would appear that the Republican's brief period of glory is about over.

For President Eisenhower the difficulties that face him in the closing years of his presidency have been increased by the overwhelming congressional victory of the Democrats.

Jet Fares Competitive

TWO-NATION entry into jet air-liner travel across the Atlantic has precipitated an early decision on what fares will be charged for the faster and more convenient service. The agreement reached, and holding for the pioneering of jet service, is that there will be no extra charge on the new aircraft over rates applying now in turbo-prop and piston flights. That means that the new jetliners will be carrying their much larger passenger lists at higher speeds and altitudes for the same unit fares as the more conventional aircraft. A fare differential, favored by some nations, would have put the jets in the luxury class; whereas their economical operation depends upon filling up their seats.

Tariffs on world air routes are set by international accord and subject to review by the same means. It is probable, however, that the working decision against "luxury" fares will hold for a year's operation of the new aircraft, in which period there will be the actual test of greatly expanded air travel. Even without the jets, passenger mileage was moving upwards. Last year about as many individuals crossed the Atlantic by air as others did by water. The jetliners, with their larger payloads, may turn the balance more in favor of flight after the new services have been rounded out and consolidated. For the public this means flight at 600 miles per hour over oceans and continents alike, at the same cost as they pay for air tickets now.

THE Soviet note to the United States on the prevention of surprise attacks may open the way to a fresh study of proposals for an Arctic inspection zone—a proposal vetoed by Russia earlier this year.

The note sets the seal on earlier East-West agreement to hold technical talks on the surprise attack problem along similar lines to the successful conference of scientists at Geneva in August on methods of controlling and supervising a suspension of nuclear weapons tests.

One of the most interesting features of Russia's weekend communication is that it accepts the inclusion of Canada as a member of the Western delegation at the talks scheduled to open in Geneva at the beginning of next week.

Diplomatic circles in London suggest this may indicate Russia now is willing to consider the vital question of Arctic inspection in relation to the over-all problem of preventing surprise attacks.

This would represent a major Russian concession. Last May Russia vetoed a United States resolution in the United Nations' security council calling for establishment of an Arctic inspection zone to safeguard against the possibility of surprise attacks.

Russia first accepted the idea of a technical conference to discuss ways and means of preventing surprise attacks on Sept. 15. But, in line with her desire for mutual inspection only in limited European areas, she suggested the talks be restricted to representatives of Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Romania from the East and the United States, France, Belgium and Britain from the West—an all-European lineup except for the U.S.

After consultations with her allies, the U.S. on Oct. 10 proposed that the Western delegation be made up of the U.S., Britain, France, Canada and Italy. Russia's latest note accepts this Western lineup and adds Albania to the Eastern bloc representatives in order to balance the number of countries participating in the Western delegation.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE poppies will be on sale this weekend. I suppose, the blood-red flowers of John McCrae and of a great remembrance.

Not everyone pays attention to the annual Cenotaph pilgrimage, either by attendance or thoughtful mien wherever they may be. There are always individuals who are careless of the sacrifice of others, even the supreme sacrifice.

But to those to whom Remembrance touches the core of their being, those in whom a poignant memory cannot be still, it is a day of rare devotion. Yea, even the mundane affairs preoccupy them after the eleventh hour has passed.

I do not think anyone should worry overmuch if to them the day is slighted by the holiday-making of others. It should be enough for those who have special cause to mourn that the day is theirs. Let the careless pursue their worldly way. Tribute by compulsion would in any event have no value.

I had a letter the other day from a lady who goes to church on November 11 rather than to the Cenotaph. She has special cause to seek devoted silence and finds the solemnity of the occasion disturbed by noise and passing cars in the Causeway area. She recalls the complete silence of the Two-Minute ceremony at London's shrine in Whitehall, and regrets that a similar sacred quietness does not obtain here.

It no longer obtains in London, either. I fear, if I am not mistaken the observance there is now held on the nearest Sunday, because time has altered the perspective of remembrance. No longer for instance do passers-by in Whitehall lift their hats to the Whitehall Cenotaph on ordinary days as once they did. It was scarcely possible that this gesture could continue; succeeding generations cannot be expected to sense the impact of happenings beyond their experience.

Time marches on, even if it leaves a pressing mark on those whose sense of loss is especially present at this period of the year. Thirteen years, even, have passed since the end of the last war symbolized by the cenotaphs that everywhere this weekend will be clothed in poppies. It is not in the nature of things that everyone should feel deeply on Remembrance Day.

Would that they did, of course. The simple truth is that the men and women in whose name we pay this annual tribute gave their lives to make us their beneficiaries. This has been said so often perhaps that the effect has worn off, but truth it still remains.

I am of the breed to whom the Armistice of 1918 still has a meaning, because it recalls fine comrades of other years. So are those for whom the cease-fire of 1945 has a sad nostalgic echo. So are families like that of my correspondent, whose grief is restirred and even mixed with pride—and a boy who did not come back commands the highest of pride—is hard to bear.

Without rancour then let us pay our own thankful tribute on Tuesday next. Let the careless pass by on the other side of the street; this is not their moment, obviously, and they are the lesser for they lack the enrichment of the memory that is ours.

Reports from Ottawa

ELECTION day Tuesday in the United States was a day that Ottawa is glad to see passed so it can get on with marrying Canadian defence industry to that of the U.S.

For the last three weeks officials here have been shush-shushing mention of the plan Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced on Sept. 23.

In this they have only been reflecting the jitters of American officials. The fear on both sides had been that the Eisenhower government's agreement in principle to set up an integrated industrial machine for continental defence might become an issue in the U.S. election. So both sides conspired to keep it quiet until after Nov. 4. They were afraid that if the Democrats got wind of it they would crucify Republican candidates in districts where U.S. defence industry is slack.

It's a curious commentary on democracy, this concealment of the American people's business from the American people during an election campaign. If it happened here the situation would warrant loud cries of protest and condemnation. But now it's over and done with, so we can expect an announcement from Washington soon about some equitable sharing with Canada of the manufacture of defence weapons common to the forces of both countries.

The Americans' willingness to agree in principle to this plan in advance of the election, with the terms, conditions and percentage of sharing to be determined after the election, is cause for no little surprise in Canada.

Insiders say that Ottawa hampered away at the Americans on the theme that since Canada is supplying vitally needed real estate for U.S. defence installations, Canadian industry should share in the manufacture of the weapons for the common defence.

But the Americans' ready acquiescence raises the disturbing suspicion that our payment for a slice of the business may be greater than we now know. Are the U.S. voters the only ones being kept in the dark?

Meanwhile, the government has slipped a couple of million dollars under the table to the electronics industry, which was hard hit by cancellation of defence contracts in September.

This "rescue fund," as it's called, is to pay salaries and pertinent overhead in an effort to keep a nucleus of electronics experts in Canada.

In the last fortnight several U.S. companies—Boeing, R.C.A. Victor, Texas Instruments and perhaps others—have set up hotel room offices in various Canadian cities to try to entice our surplus electronics people to jobs in the U.S.

If we lose our top brains in this field, we won't have the know-how to handle jobs under an integrated defence production program. This is an angle that U.S. companies, unwilling to make room for Canadians at the Washington trough, are not overlooking.

The rescue fund is intended to put up to a couple of hundred of the best brains on "think" jobs until spring. Their assignment: to start thinking about problems the armed forces expect to have to face in a decade, like spotting enemy submarines under polar ice.

However, for this calibre of person, American greenbacks don't have the appeal of yore. There are too many disillusioned Canadian scientists and engineers coming back to Canada, most of them with devastating criticism of U.S. educational methods and standards. As one of them explained his return:

"I don't want my kids to grow up to be morons."

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

AN elderly tycoon of my acquaintance who lately has bought out two competitors in his line of business has been explaining his success to me.

"Nowadays," he says, "it is pretty generally accepted that all you have to have in business and industry is a few good men at the top. Down below the top brackets, it is taken for granted that good men are a dime a dozen."

"It just isn't so. All enterprise starts at the bottom, not the top. First, you have to have a machine, and then a good man to operate it. Next, you have to have good foremen to handle intelligently the good men operating the machines. Then you have to have good management, to intelligently handle the foremen. And finally, you have to have good directors to support the management. What I am trying to point out is that enterprise—that is, production—comes from the bottom up."

"These people I recently bought out, on my own terms, were the sort of outfits that subscribed body and soul to the current belief that a good sales organization can sell anything. They ended up a bunch of playboy executives, full of cynicism towards their product as well as towards the buying public. A pitchman at a country fair can sell you a phony carrot-peeler. But there's a funny thing. You seldom see the same pitchman twice. They come and they go."

Compulsory Unionism

By DAVID LAWRENCE

IF you are a member of any organization and don't like the way it is being run, you can resign. That's a form of protest widely understood in America.

Unfortunately, however, in many states if you are a member of a labor union you can't resign without losing your job—the boss has agreed by contract with the union to fire you.

This is the essence of the "right to work" controversy. Congress passed a law saying that the states can deal with the problem in their own way. Eighteen states passed laws forbidding compulsory union membership. The people of six states voted Tuesday on the same issue.

Considerable misrepresentation of the real issue has been broadcast. It has been contended, for instance, by some churchmen that opposition to compulsory membership in unions is immoral. But the evidence shows that many prominent churchmen do not feel that way. Likewise, labor union leaders argued that a worker must not be a "free rider"—that is, he must not be willing to receive the benefits of what the union does without paying for the upkeep of the union.

But that isn't the real issue at all. Here is what Rev. Edward A. Keller of Notre Dame University, in his book "The Case for Right to Work Laws," published in 1957 by The Heritage Foundation Inc., Chicago, says:

"It should be pointed out that the non-union workers in an open shop today are not 'free riders' but forced riders, since under the Taft-Hartley Act they lose their right to bargain individually with their employers and are forced to bargain through the union."

Rev. Francis J. Connell, dean of the Sacred School of Theology of Catholic University in Washington, D.C., made an interesting point about the "free rider" theory when he wrote:

"The argument in question is likely to prove a boomerang to Catholics. It is the same argument that anti-Catholics use to make us pay taxes on our school and church property: 'If you get the benefit of fire protection, etc., for your property, you should pay for it.' We answer that we do make compensation to the state by the things of spiritual value we provide for the public. I believe a similar response might be made by the man who does not join a union."

The truth is a non-union member or a union member who has the right at any time to resign in protest can exert a powerful influence in bringing about unions that are democratic and free from corruption and which it would be desirable for the worker to join if he conscientiously believes in unions.

This is the point stressed by Rev. Edward W. Greenfield, who studied the "right to work" situation at first hand in Indiana when he was pastor of a Presbyterian church there. As editor of Faith and Freedom, a religious monthly published in California, he wrote recently:

"It is no longer the employer who decides whether a man may remain in his employment; it is the union, though the employer must do the firing. This remains true whether the union leadership be Communist, corrupt, politically partisan or otherwise indifferent to the rights and interests of union members."

"The workman has lost his freedom of choice in regard to joining or not joining a union. He has been deprived of his most effective weapon of protest, namely withdrawal of support when he does not approve of union policies and leadership. He has been denied the right to hold his job unless he pays money into the union treasury."

Judge Carter of the Nebraska Supreme Court, in upholding the "right to work" laws of that state, wrote:

"We have prided ourselves in this country on free speech and free thought, rights which have been guaranteed to us by constitutional provision. Compulsory unionism infringes upon these rights and often encroaches upon the right of an individual to be free from coercion by others. To compel him to contribute to the support of economic or political programs adopted by a union, which may be abhorrent to him, is as constitutionally wrong as if similar programs were compelled by the employer. The Fifth Amendment protects against the forced appropriation of one's property for the support of ideals which he may desire to oppose."

Letters to the Editor

Pensions as a Right

A notice was sent to all recipients of old-age pension cheques for October advising them that if they planned a trip this year and such trip would take them out of Canada for more than one month, they would have to notify the regional director prior to departure and that failure to do so might result in them having to refund pension payments improperly received.

As I recall it, when the old-age security bill was being discussed in Parliament prior to its adoption, the then prime minister stated the pensions would be granted as a matter of right to those who were entitled for the part they played in assisting to build up the country.

There will be another bill tabled at the next session of Parliament to be known as the "Bill of Rights" and the right of any old-age pensioner to go anywhere outside Canada and for any length of time without having to lose the pension should be incorporated in this bill. This practice is in effect in the United Kingdom and also Australia, etc., and it surely should be in effect in Canada.

Other pensioners such as retired MPs, ministers of the Crown, etc., receive their pension cheques wherever they may be staying outside Canada and no restrictive time limit governs.

No Heckling

The report in the Colonist of Nov. 5 gives the impression that the meeting in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall on the previous night was rowdy with heckling.

In fairness to the Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association, who arranged and conducted the meeting, and some 250 people present, I must correct this false impression. The hall was crowded, the subject contentious—but the people comported themselves in a most orderly manner. The "heckling" consisted of an occasional jocular interjection which caused a welcome, all-round chuckle.

Question of Source

I would like to treat the letter written by Dr. Arkle (Nov. 2), with its extremely ungracious method of expression, with the contempt it deserves.

We owe no one an apology for any statements made. Has the doctor himself done any research, or does he depend on that of others? When qualified men and women who have done lengthy research give us their findings, we may surely believe them. It is from such reliable sources that I get my information.

The resolution in question was quite clear as to its meaning, and I quote in part: "...he it resolved that ... condemn the addition of any substance to public water supplies for the purpose of affecting the bodies or the bodily or mental function of the consumers ..." It is the doctor who owes an apology.

Mr. Martin in Error

It is reported that Mr. Martin, B.C. Health Minister, when addressing the B.C. Hospitals' Association stated that under the U.K. national health scheme doctors, dentists, pharmacists and hospital staffs were "all part of the government payroll."

If Mr. Martin is correctly reported to have made the above statement I am afraid it shows that our health minister has very little knowledge of the U.K. health scheme, as doctors, dentists, pharmacists and other technical staff are not on the government payroll but are paid by the government on the basis of patients on their panels. The patient still retains the right to choose his own doctor and change him at will, and the same applies to dentists.

The British drug stores are as independent of government control as our own stores here in British Columbia, although the government pays drug bills authorized by the patient's doctor. Doctors, dentists and other technical staff operate within the scheme and also independently, as they are permitted to take private patients. Similarly drug stores sell prescriptions and drugs completely outside the scheme.

It is true that the government took over the hospitals, but the operation of the hospitals still remains in the hands of the administrators, although the bill for the operation of the hospitals is paid by the government. After all here in B.C. the same applies.

Re Mr. Payne's letter regarding the Veterans' Hospital and visiting hours, I wish to correct him in his statement.

Visitors are allowed at any time by request, and certainly on Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday and all holiday afternoons and evenings. I am a patient in this wonderful institution and I have no complaint in any shape or form.

As regards parking facilities, I consider that it is only right that the more convenient areas adjacent to the main entrance should be reserved for visiting medical consultants who are many times giving time from their own practice for our benefit. Therefore, visitors should not begrudge the two or three minutes spent in walking to the main entrance from what Mr. Payne considers inconvenient areas for parking.

Up in Smoke

Now Halloween is over for another year—here is a suggestion:

Let the children make it a time of "giving." Let them seek out someone in need, sick or just alone—to give a "treat" to or perform some little service for them.

Thinking of all the money used on fireworks to go up in smoke—and what it could have done towards feeding some of the distress at Springhill prompted these thoughts. The "Save the Children Fund" is an excellent idea.

Compassion, thought for others' less fortunate than themselves could bring as much joy and far more satisfaction.

Should Visit Arabs

While Mr. Diefenbaker's world tour is to be welcomed and is in keeping with the high standard set by the St. Laurent government in such matters, there seems to be one blind spot in the Prime Minister's itinerary. That is the Middle East.

It would be well for Mr. Diefenbaker to obtain some first-hand experience of the Arab world. The area is complex and crucial. New divisions are arising within it. Outside influence is still potent.

Canada's prestige in the Arab world is fairly high, thanks to the fine work of Mr. Pearson and our distinguished soldier-diplomat, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of UNEF. However, in view of the pressing needs of its people, the strategic importance of the embattled area and the attention it is receiving from Moscow, a short call by Mr. Diefenbaker on some of the key figures would, I think, have been well worth while.

Apart from this omission, Mr. Diefenbaker's itinerary seems to have been well thought out, including, of course, his sentimental journey to Scotland.

Education Revised By Navy

Youths entering the naval service may find better career opportunities through a revised education program of the Royal Canadian Navy.

The program has been inaugurated to meet the challenge of current and future developments in ships, aircraft, weapons and equipment, a navy spokesman said.

It will enable prospective officer candidates with less than junior matriculation standing to take the RCN junior matriculation course scheduled to begin at HMCS Naden in Esquimalt in January. Successful students may qualify for HMCS Venture, College Militaire Royale de St. Jean and university.

Another course will prepare students to write Grade 13 examinations set and marked by the B.C. department of education.

Men over 24, who by reason of age are not eligible for the two other courses, will be offered the seven-month branch officer course which is comparable in senior matriculation.

Old Mission Ended

Half-century of service in the Saanich Peninsula came to an end Tuesday when members of the Society of Mary Most Holy turned over administration of the West Saanich and Sidney parishes to secular priests of the diocese of Victoria.

Demand for missionaries throughout the world has led to the gradual withdrawal of the order, whose territory at one time covered Sooke, Saanich, Sidney, Cowichan, and most of the Gulf Islands.

During the term of Rev. Father Irvin Leclerc, who has been pastor of the two local parishes for the past six years, the interiors of both Our Lady of the Assumption and St. Elizabeth's churches have been made notable contributions to the welfare of young people of the district.

Their successors will be Rev. Father Philip Hanley and Rev. Father William Mudge.

Seaman Deep In Clover

Able Seaman James Lambert just doesn't know what to expect next.

When he found five four-leaf clovers in the grass outside the petty officers' mess at HMCS Naden Tuesday he thought he was very lucky.

Then he found a five-leaf clover. Now he is a little worried.

Dr. Adam Szczawinski, botanist at the Provincial Museum, said five-leaf clovers are commoner than many people think. But he didn't know the superstition going with it.

"If a four-leaf clover is good luck," he said, "maybe a five-leaf one is even better luck."

Husband Proud Of Jurywoman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Rose Juhere, a member of the jury in the complicated Sommers bribery-conspiracy case, says her husband is "very proud."

The case concluded Wednesday after 79 days in B.C. Supreme Court and the jury was released. The nine men and three women who came together May 1 as strangers, parted with the mutual respect and affection of people who have shared a common responsibility.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, in his tribute to the jury at the close of the case spoke of the "complicated evidence," some of it "difficult for a third-year law student to understand."

Mrs. Juhere, 33, mother of an 11-year-old girl, had never been in a courtroom before.

"My husband is very proud," she said in an interview. "He supported me 100 per cent. I don't think I could have made it without him."

Her husband, Clyde, walked with her up the courthouse driveway at the start of each day's hearings. He sent her flowers during the week the jury was locked up to consider its verdict.

... no precedent

Decision on New Trials To Be Reached Shortly

A decision on whether new in about one week, Attorney-General Bonner said. His charges the jurors didn't agree, parliament "will consider" the on in the Sommers-bribery question after a full conference trial will be made once with crown counsel.

Victoria MLA George Gregory yesterday called upon Premier Bennett to dismiss Attorney-General Robert Bonner immediately over his handling of the Sommers case.

The Liberal member also asked that Mr. Bennett and the rest of his cabinet resign and call an immediate provincial general election.

Mr. Gregory said: "From beginning to end, Mr. Bonner's conduct has been incomprehensible when measured by the standards citizens of this province have the right to expect of their chief law officer."

"I am not one of those who feel that Mr. Bonner should resign. I feel that he should be forthwith dismissed from the cabinet."

"It seems to me the premier is no more fit to hold office than his attorney general."

"I do not know whether the other members of the cabinet knew what was going on or not, but I feel they should have known and that by their silence they are at least as guilty as the premier."

Earlier, Provincial Opposition Leader Robert Strachan called for "complete review of every forest management licence and every timber contract" that passed through the hands of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

Mr. Strachan said he would not appeal to Attorney-General Bonner to resign over his handling of the Sommers case.

"I simply expect the people to throw him and the government which has supported him out at the next election," he said.

"The ethics of the British parliamentary system make it impossible for Mr. Sommers the legislative assembly and, if perchance there is some obscure law which would allow him to keep his seat, Mr. Sommers should resign," the CCF leader said.

Well, Here We Go, John

VANCOUVER (CP) — Accused men and their lawyers shuffled expectantly outside a third-floor room at the Vancouver court house.

Charles Schultz, leaning against a door jamb smoking a cigarette, "Well, they say when you face death you always feel pretty calm," he said. "I guess I'm that way right now."

His lawyer, Walter Owen, puffed on a cigar and said: "Never mind, Charlie, you still have a great number of friends. Always remember that."

As the jury filed into the courtroom, Mr. Owen laid his half-smoked cigar aside and went in also. Five minutes later the cigar had burned an oblong scar in a wooden sign, John Gray, another of the accused, lounged in a room directly across from the courtroom. He too smoked a cigarette.

At 2:30 p.m., in the courtroom, Sheriff's officer Bob Drummond shouted: "Gentlemen!"

"Well, here we go, John," said Schultz to Gray.

"Yes, here we go," echoed Gray. They moved off to meet their fate.

U.S. 'Can't Stomach' It

Free Americans Ike Tells China

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower said Wednesday the United States will not change its attitude toward Red China as long as it does things which, as he put it, the American government and people cannot stomach.

He told a news conference one of these things was the continued holding in Chinese prisons of several Americans whom the Peking government had promised to release.

The president acknowledged there had been some changes in the relationship between Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China and the United States. He recalled that Chiang, in the Oct. 23 communique issued jointly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, pledged to use peaceful methods as the "primary means" of trying to regain the Chinese mainland.

Eisenhower said that factors involved in this section of the communique were subject to constant change.

Landlord Lays Siege To Tenant

NICE, France (UPI)—A stubborn landlord succeeded in winning control of his own apartment yesterday from an equally stubborn tenant after a month-long battle of squatters rights and changed door locks.

A French court ruled that landlord Albert Bernadet should be sole possessor of his apartment on the swank Promenade des Anglais in Nice, a broad avenue running along the sea front.

Bernadet decided more than a month ago that he wanted to get Paul Equinet out of the apartment so he could move in. But since eviction is difficult under French law, Equinet stood his ground.

SHARED QUARTERS
Equinet tried to have police evict his landlord. Police refused. The two men stayed in the apartment together from then on, only making sorties when necessary to go to court. When Bernadet left once, Equinet nearly succeeded in changing the locks.

There the situation remained, with Bernadet staying in the apartment eating food passed in by friends.

Then a court decided that he had the right to live in his own apartment and the battle yesterday appeared to be over.

Mrs. Peters Rites Held

Funeral services were held at 3:15 p.m. yesterday at McCall Brothers' funeral home for Mrs. Edith Peters, 76, who died at St. Joseph's Hospital on Sunday.

Mrs. Peters, a resident of Victoria since 1911, was the widow of the late Thomas Peters and was a former member of the Eastern Star.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Jackson of Sooke and Mrs. Janice DeAth of Vancouver; a son, Roy of Victoria; eight grandchildren; five great-grandchildren and a brother, George Exton of Victoria.

B.C., Ottawa Ready to Act

B.C. and federal governments are prepared to deal as soon as possible with the 45 applications received from Sons of Freedom Doukhobors asking for assisted migration to Europe. Attorney-General Bonner said last night.

The applications were received at the offices of provincial government agents and director of citizenship and immigration by Sept. 30. No other applications have been submitted.

Implementation of the assistance offer is conditional upon advice that the Soviet Union will accept the applying Doukhobors as immigrants, Mr. Bonner said.

He said the Soviet embassy at Ottawa, upon being asked about the acceptability of the Doukhobor sect as immigrants, has suggested the Sons of Freedom themselves should be asked the answer to that question.

Provincial and federal governments are now communicating with individual applicants and the fraternal council of the Sons of Freedom as to whether or not the Soviet Union has said it would accept any of them, Mr. Bonner said.

Shape of Things to Come?

The model apartment house area planned for Queenswood Heights in Saanich will look like this if permission to build is granted by Saanich council. Each of 25 units will contain eight apartments spread over a 15-acre site with more than 80 per cent of the area landscaped. Residents of the area, however, are expected to register strong opposition to rezoning of the area, at a public hearing to be held Nov. 17. A protest meeting was held in the district last night.

Driver Licence Cards

Documents Shown At Forgery Trial

More than 30 duplicate B.C. driver licence cards were found in a Vancouver apartment, together with printing outfits, tools and credit cards, a Vancouver detective told an Assize Court jury here yesterday.

Det. Samuel Fowlow was testifying at the trial of William Black, 33, of Vancouver who is charged with forging and cashing income tax rebate cheques.

The trial enters its fourth day before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane today.

The witness said he had gone to Black's apartment and found the exhibits, which he identified one by one, in a cardboard box in the bedroom.

They included rubber printing outfits and stamps, type holders, and printed cards for the B.C. Automobile Association, the Western Acceptance Corporation and drivers' licences.

Det. Fowlow also said he noticed a typewriter in the room and later recovered it.

More Heads May Fall

Iraqis Cry for Purge

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Baghdad radio broadcast appeals for a purge of anti-state "plotters and traitors" yesterday following the arrest of pro-Nasser Col. Abdul Salem Mohammed Aref, former No. 2 man in the Iraqi revolution.

The appeals were made in a steady stream of broadcast messages from Iraqi tribal chieftains and political leaders backing Iraqi premier Abdel Karim Kassam for his action against Aref.

The radio texts heard here urged Kassam to "arrest and punish plotters and traitors against state security." They were taken as a strong indication that more heads would fall.

Baghdad radio announced that Aref, one of the leaders of the July 14 revolt and known for his anti-Western views, was arrested when he returned to Baghdad from his post as ambassador to West Germany.

Aref, the most pro-Nasser figure in the Baghdad revolutionary regime, had been relieved as deputy commander-in-chief last Sept. 12. The following day he was stripped of his posts as deputy premier and interior minister, and named ambassador to West Germany.

Police Shod by Quebec

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Labor Council learned Tuesday that 100 bootworkers here will be laid off in the next two weeks, while a firm in St. Tite, Quebec, makes boots for city police and firemen.

A letter from Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress who investigated the Quebec firm, said women workers at the plant—which is non-union—make between 25 and 36 cents an hour and men make from 36 to 67 cents an hour. The J. Leckie Company here announced it will lay off workers because there is not enough work to keep them employed. The firm made the boots for 20 years until last May, when city council awarded a $26,769 contract for 1,701 pairs of boots to the firm of G. A. Boulet of St. Tite. The labor council voted to send a copy of Mr. MacDonald's letter to city council to protest awarding of the contract to the Quebec firm.

Nanaimo Marks Guy Fawkes Day

NANAIMO — Youngsters in Nanaimo marked Guy Fawkes Night last night despite the rain. Scores of effigies of the ringleader of the famed gunpowder plot were burned atop bonfires in the area.

Believed alone among the cities of Canada, Nanaimo preserves the Guy Fawkes Day tradition brought to the city from Britain by the city's first settlers, more than 100 years ago.

Many of those who plan the fires and enjoy the hot dogs and fireworks that go with them are unaware of the origin of the custom. It is known now as Nanaimo Night. Children spend weeks preparing for it, gathering fuel for monster blazes that sometimes are touched off prematurely by mischievous gangs.

The observance recalls the discovery Nov. 5 of Guy Fawkes standing with lighted torch beside barrels of gunpowder in the cellars of the House of Commons in London, preparing to set off an explosion that would have eliminated King James I and both Houses of Parliament.

The Guy Fawkes Day tradition was introduced to Nanaimo in 1851 by passengers of the brig Harpioneer. English miners who came here to work coal deposits which had just been found.

Vandals Blamed For Accident

Removal of dead-end and stop signs at Mill's Crossroad and West Saanich Road—two signs caused a car-driven by well-known golf official Leo Dorman to go over a 16-foot embankment Sunday.

Mr. Dorman, 552 Walter, suffered fractured ribs. His wife and passengers Mr. and Mrs. Philip Manson, of West Saanich Road, were cut and bruised.

Prince Philip Foils Student 'Kidnap' Plot

HAL MARCH
... (text obscured)

HOWARD GREEN
... (text obscured)

WYE, England — Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, foiled a "kidnap" plot by a group of students at Wye College, part of London University, today by turning the plot into a farce.

The students, who had planned to kidnap the prince and hold him for ransom, were told that the prince was not in the country and that the plot was a hoax.

Names In the News

The Queen — The Queen and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, arrived in London today from their tour of the West Indies.

The queen and prince were met at the airport by a large crowd of people who wished to see them.

Queen Elizabeth — Queen Elizabeth II, who is visiting Canada, arrived in Ottawa today for a visit to the Parliament Buildings.

The queen and prince will be in Ottawa for several days, during which they will meet with the prime minister and other government officials.

Below Cost Dumping Poultry Ban Sought

Ottawa will be asked to prevent the dumping of surplus poultry and meat by the federal government, a move which would allow a few cents a pound for raising them.

The move is being pushed by the Canadian Poultry Producers' Association, which says that the dumping of surplus poultry is causing a loss of business for its members.

Your Health Department

Study the Labels For Thriftier Buys

This is another article of the series prepared by the Health Department of the Federal Government.

Many times, when you buy food, you are faced with a choice of brands. How can you tell which is the better buy? The answer is simple: study the labels.

The labels on food products tell you a great deal about the quality of the food. They tell you the ingredients, the date of manufacture, and the name of the manufacturer.

True Facts

The first fact is that the name of the product is not always a reliable guide to its quality. Many products are sold under the same name, but the quality may be different.

The second fact is that the date of manufacture is important. Food products should be used within a certain period of time after they are made.

Fluid Ounces

The amount of fluid in a can of food is also an important factor. Many cans are labeled with the volume of the food in fluid ounces.

It is important to know the volume of the food because it helps you to compare the prices of different brands.

Varied Grades

Many food products are sold in different grades. For example, there are different grades of apples, oranges, and vegetables.

The grades are determined by the size, color, and quality of the food. The higher the grade, the better the quality.

Size Guide

For instance, peas and beans are often graded by size. The size is indicated by a number, such as 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6.

The size does not necessarily indicate quality, but it does indicate the amount of food in the can. A can of size 1 peas will contain more peas than a can of size 6 peas.

Shopping Aid

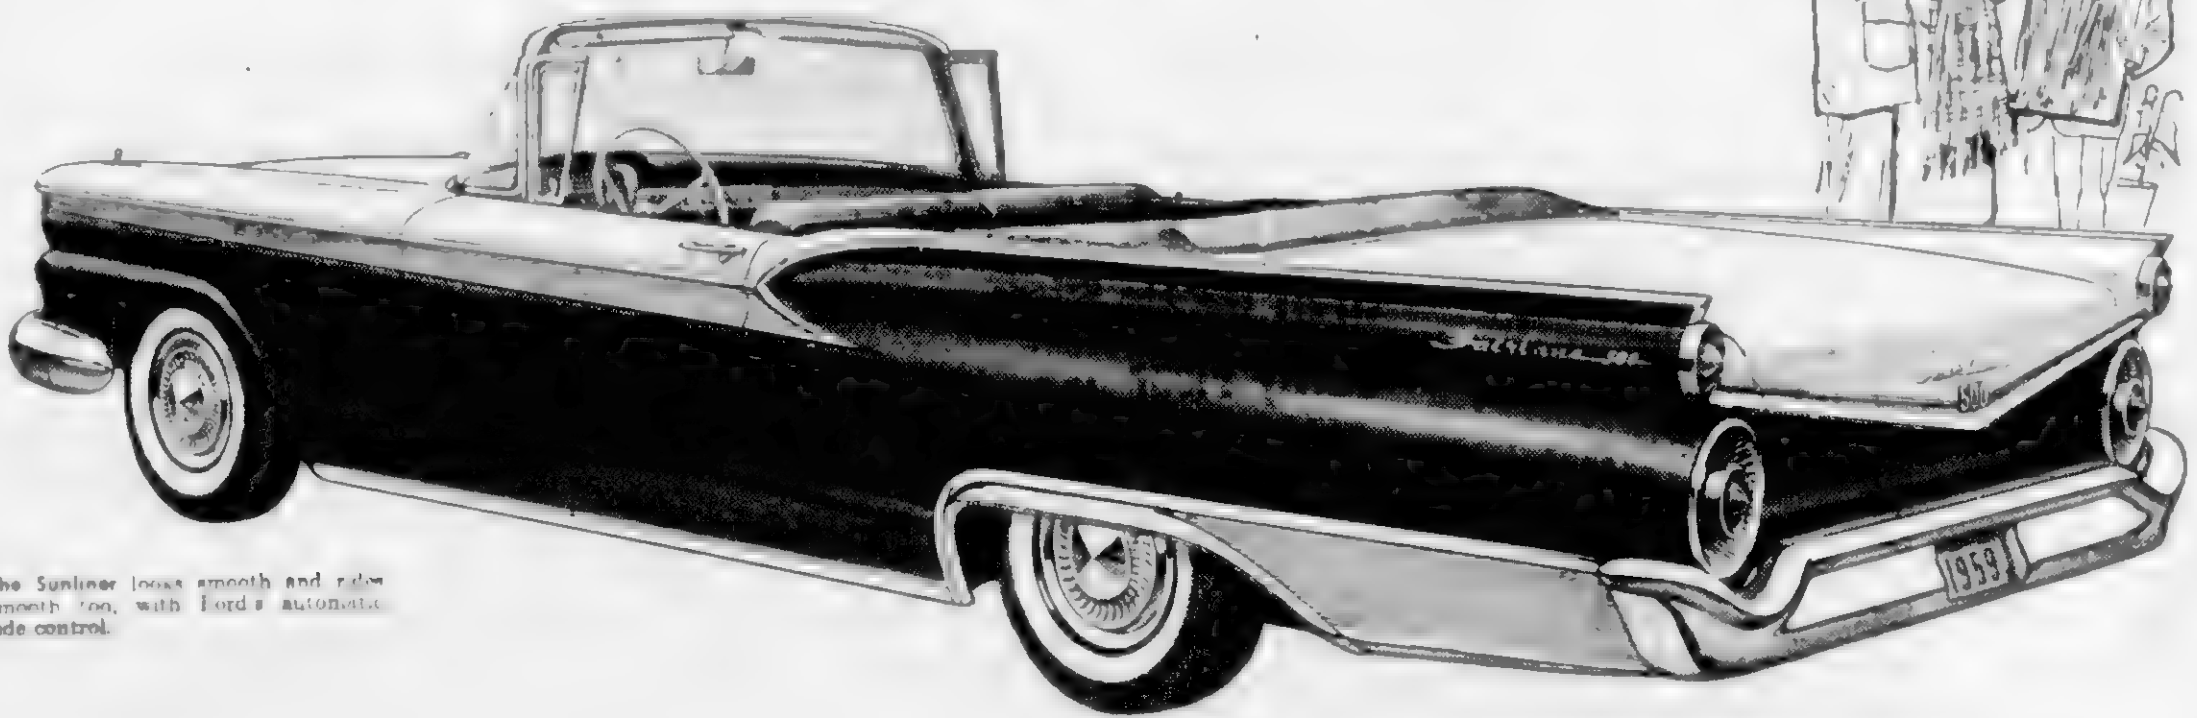

By knowing these facts, you can make a more informed choice when you buy food. You can compare the prices of different brands and choose the one that gives you the best value for your money.

Remember, the key to thrifty buying is to study the labels. They tell you a great deal about the food you are buying.

B.C. Cave Home Only One Known

The only known cave home does not change present ideas about the early human population in the northwest. The cave, located on the Queen Charlotte Islands, was recently discovered by provincial archaeologists.

Michael Kew of the Provincial Museum said yesterday the cave, discovered on an expedition, was a small, simple structure made of stones and wooden planks, with a thatched roof.

Restaurateurs Seek Help To Solve Worst Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Restaurant Association is trying to interest federal and provincial governments in training programs for restaurant personnel.

John Coles of Toronto, CRA president, says the biggest problem facing restaurant operators is the lack of trained personnel.

He regrets that no Canadian university gives a degree course in food service.

So far, training programs have included an apprentice course for chefs and bakers in Alberta, a three-year diploma course in hotel and restaurant management in Toronto, and CRA-sponsored refresher courses for waitresses. Too many people, he said, go into the food business lacking knowledge and sufficient interest to acquire knowledge about the business.

But during a tour of Canada, he noticed a general improvement in restaurants and found that more emphasis now is placed on regional dishes such as salmon in British Columbia.

Wanton Disregard, Says Steacy

Farmers Block Disease Control

Farmers of the Fraser Valley are hindering the government's campaign to rid the province entirely of brucellosis or Bang's disease, Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy said yesterday.

There has been wanton disregard of all the advice given by the department of agriculture, Mr. Steacy said.

He said the Fraser River district which has 70 per cent of the dairy cattle in B.C. is the only area not free of brucellosis now. All other areas, he said, had operated in the government's free vaccination program for calves.

The free service was accepted less in the Fraser district than anywhere else in the province, he said.

"Some farmers there absolutely refused to use the free service."

He said there would be no relaxation of the vaccination program despite appeals from the Chilliwack area.

"It has been reported dealers and truckers are losing money," he said. "Ours is a 'help the farmer' program and the dealers and others interested will just have to accept regulations and govern themselves accordingly."

He charged that "dealers want us to relax regulations so they can buy untested cattle cheaply and sell them in other provinces at 400 per cent profit."

City Officer Wins Order Of St. John

A Victoria RCAF officer has been honored with the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Sgt. Ldr. James D. Duncan, 45, an administrative officer with the medical branch at Metz, France, received the St. John medal—a white cross on a black ribbon—at a recent investiture in London, England.

The news was contained in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cook, 1286 Balmoral, from their daughter, Mrs. James D. Duncan, who wrote that this was the first time that a non-doctor had ever been honored with the St. John medal.

To Meet Here

Future leaders will demonstrate athletic and intellectual skills at a B.C. area Junior Leaders' Club rally starting here on Friday.

Wider, Deeper Suez Canal

Egyptian workers have started the "Nasser plan" to widen and deepen the Suez canal, and thereby increase the daily number of convoys going through. When work is finished, the canal will take two-way traffic for shipping up to 45 feet draught, instead of the present 34 feet, and will be more than 90 feet wider.

Too Much to Read

Paper Avalanche Defeats Scientists

VANCOUVER (CP)—If a scientist spent eight hours a day for a year reading and digesting scientific bulletins on forestry and agriculture, he would find in 12 months he was still 10 years behind.

And if he included technical material, he would be 100 years behind.

That four glimpses of a scientist's plight was provided Tuesday by Sir Herbert Howard of London, head of the Commonwealth Agriculture Bureau, in a speech to the British Columbia Institute of Agriologists.

Sir Herbert said it is the job of the bureau to "boil down the daily crop of scientific treatises so they can be more easily digested."

Riots in Tokyo

TOKYO (Reuters)—Ten thousand police last night tried to restrain milling masses of demonstrators as they snaked through Tokyo in protest against a government bill to increase police powers.

Police reinforcements swarmed into the capital to keep order. It was one of the city's biggest demonstrations since the end of the war.

Huge traffic snarls developed as the demonstrators converged on the embattled Diet Parliament Buildings—scene of recent rowdy free-for-alls over the controversial legislation.

Paper Firm Wins

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada, in a judgment made public Tuesday, confirmed an award of $33,106 and interest to the Powell River Company Ltd. for loss of the tugboat Tee-shoe Dec. 4, 1954.

The admiralty district of B.C. had found that the loss of the tugboat was due to the negligent operation of the steamship Giovanni Amendola, whose owners appealed against the amount of damages awarded.

Religion First for Manning

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Premier Manning of Alberta who also conducts an hour-long weekly religious radio program heard across Canada said Tuesday "there is absolutely no conflict" between his work as an evangelist and his duties as premier.

"If a decision is contrary to the principles of Christianity as outlined in the Bible," he said, "I cannot follow."

"It is the duty of every man to see that his principles are in accord with Christianity. If a decision is made accordingly, it is always right."

Premier Manning and the cast of his Back to the Bible Hour broadcast are touring the Maritimes. The premier said the trip "is purely evangelical. It has nothing to do with politics."

"My work for Christianity began long before my political work. If it came to a choice, I would choose my work for Christianity."

Garden Notes

Most Popular Roses

By M. V. CHESNUT, F.H.S.

If you have been stringing along with me for the last few days, you should be just about ready to kick a hole in Junior's piggy bank and go out and buy yourself some rose bushes. This being the case, I think you might spend a little time today examining some of the more popular more like a football quarterback than a rose breeder) says it is still the best his firm has ever developed. The color is a coppery-orange flushed with red on the outside of the petals. A good bloomer, and delicately perfumed.

WHITE KNIGHT R.T.

The best white rose ever to come

Francis Meiland, creator of Peace, who died earlier this year in his rose garden at Nice. The buds are beautifully pointed, and open into a pure white flower without a trace of any other color. It is a strong grower, like its sister Peace, and the flowers do not discolor in wet weather. It is expensive to buy as yet, but a big improvement over the older and scentless Frau Karl Druschki.

PEACE R.T.

I have left this one to the last, for it is my favorite rose. Developed by Francis Meiland, it was named Ceille Meiland originally, but was patented in the U.S.A. under its present name, and soon became the best-selling rose of all time.

The color is almost impossible to describe, as the shades change by the hour as the bud gradually opens, ranging from yellow through pink to a glowing golden heart. The flowers are borne singly on long, straight stems, and the cut flowers last longer than any other rose I have ever grown.

MOJAVE R.T.

The outstanding feature of this stemmed buds it produces for cutting purposes. The color really hits you in the eye, too—a glowing orange shade touched with scarlet and vermillion. The bush is tall and rather upright in its habit of growth, and the blooms moderately fragrant.

QUEEN ELIZABETH—GRANDIFLORA

This is the first of a new race of roses, the grandifloras, making big bushes with healthy, luxuriant foliage, and big blooms in a delicate pure pink. The stems are almost thornless, and the flowers are borne both singly and in clusters.

SPICK'S YELLOW R.T.

This is a home-grown rose, developed by the Spick nursery in Stanich, and for my money, the best clear yellow rose for the Victoria district.

ENA HARKNESS R.T.

This is an English rose, with beautifully formed flowers and elegantly pointed petals rather like those of the old-fashioned tea roses. The petals are waxy and of good substance, standing up well under bad weather, and the color is a clean crimson-scarlet. Fragrant.

THE DOCTOR R.T.

This rose honors the memory of the late Dr. Horace MacFarland, one of America's leading rosarians. The buds are long and pointed, expanding into an enormous bloom of an exquisite silvery pink shade. Very fragrant.

MRS. SAM MCGREDY R.T.

Not a new rose, but Sam McGredy of Portadown, Ireland (who looks

Manic, Satiric Caesar

The Sid Caesar show Sunday night had all the hallmarks of his unique genius: it was manic, satiric, extravagant, contemporary and frequently overdone. It was wonderful having him back, warts and all. For the first time in a long time, he had space to work in—he needs a lot of it and a trio of marvellous co-workers and foils in Art Carney, Shirley MacLaine and Cliff Norton.

Humor, for years now, has been getting too mild, too bland, too harmless and it's a pleasure to welcome back some real mean humor. There were some wonderfully telling slashes in a satire on Playhouse 90, particularly on those long trailers. "We'll now show you Act II of our play three weeks from tonight, an original repeat by our alternate sponsor."

Even meaner and truer and deadlier was a little parody on the Dick Clark show with Carney playing the part of a disk jockey. "And now the beautifuls sing 'You Drive a Stake Through My Heart,'" cried Carney cheerily. "Really, you have no idea how much money I make out of you kids. I'm especially fond of this label because I get an awful lot of money plugging it."

And the sketch ended with Caesar, playing the part of a manic-teenager, grabbing Carney and in a truly inspired bit of comedy that was both funny and tragic, crying: "You're all we got, Johnny! I mean—is this it? Is this life—jumping around in this dopey music? We need help!" I don't know why that got a bark of laughter out of me except that laughter and tears are always closer than we think.

Caesar still needs editing. It was an untidy hour but it had class and exuberance and originality and, oh brother, do we ever need all those things.

It was a good night for comedy, actually. Over on Steve Allen's program, Elaine May and Mike Nichols made a return appearance with a devastatingly funny bit about finding an apartment in this crowded and unreasonable town.

Like Caesar, these two use sheer outrage to shake laughter out of you. Miss May's look of icy scorn when Mr. Nichols said he had children, for example, "But they don't have to live with us... We're not even very close, really..." Sometimes I could kill my wife for having them."

This is the humor of wild exaggeration and you had best be sure-footed about it. My only reservation about Nichols and May is that they seem a little limited in scope, but you can't have everything. As comic evenings go, last Sunday was a high-water mark and we haven't had one of those for some time.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Arlen Hates 'Method'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—"I could kill the method players, said long-time star Richard Arlen, on the set of his current 'Warlock' film at 20th-Century-Fox. "It takes a method player eight hours to open a door and even then he has to have a motivation instead of a key."

"They've got a whole batch of us old bags in 'Warlock,'" continued Dick. "We're 'new faces,'" chimed in veteran actors Regis Toomey and Wally Ford. Arlen, in the motion picture biz for 38 years, sighed: "Acting for the screen isn't like it used to be. Nobody laughs any more."

Debbie Reynolds has left the hospital and is back at Metro in "The Mating Game." Diagnosis for Debbie's illness: exhaustion and unhappiness.

Diane Varsi is retaining her ex-husband, James Dickson, as her business manager. Diane's new car, she told me on the set of "Compulsion," was smashed up by one of her good friends. Isn't that often the way?

New York theatregoers will see more of Rod Steiger than movie and TV audiences — Rod's only costume throughout the entire production of "Rashomon" is a loin cloth.

Mary Pickford is about $5,000,000 richer from the subdivision of her Pickfair estate.

Maria Schell, in Playhouse 90's "Word From a Sealed-off Box," was so good that Metro will rush her into another movie.

South West North East

1 N.T. Pass 3 N.T. All Pass

Opening lead: 4

South's 17-point hand is a classic one-no-trump opening. A Stayman two-club response by North would have revealed the 4-4 heart suit, but South managed to make three-no-trump.

Dummy's jack was played on the opening diamond, covered by East's queen and won by South's king. Declarer could count three spade tricks, two hearts and two clubs in addition to his diamond trick, a total of eight—one short of his contract. True, either clubs or hearts might yield another, but meanwhile West would take his high diamonds and, if he had started with five, this would set the hand. South reasoned that if the dangerous diamond suit broke evenly, he had all the time in the world to establish the odd trick in hearts or clubs, but if he forced West to cash his winners immediately, East might be embarrassed for discards later on. A diamond was therefore returned immediately and was won by East who rightly refused to play another diamond, exiting with a spade. South took this in his hand, and led another diamond. Now the jig was up, for should West fail to cash his remaining diamonds, he could never again regain the lead. If, however, he did play two more diamonds, East could not later protect both hearts and clubs. South would win West's lead, cash two more spades, and East be hopelessly squeezed. Either a club or heart discard enables declarer to gather the odd trick in that suit.

Note that no other line of play could have been successful.
